Investment Protection within the EU

Desk Research – Summary

Introduction

The purpose of this report is to provide an overview of the key findings from the desk research conducted on Investment Protection within the EU and to present the collected data in a spreadsheet format. You can find the list of data collected in the following pages with links, and you can conduct a deeper search in the excel file, where you can also filter the content.

Methodology & Limitations

The desk research was conducted by reviewing relevant academic literature, EU reports, case law, and online resources. The research focused on substantive rules concerning protection of investment in intra-EU settings, under EU legal rules. The collection contains all case-law and documents cited in some of the most relevant reports from recent years concerning protection of cross-border investment in the EU namely the “Protection of intra-EU investment” Communication of 7 July 2018 and the report prepared for the Commission “Impact assessment study on investment protection and facilitation in the EU” of January 2021. In addition, a large number of academic contributions has been assessed to fill in any gaps in case law.

The collection does not contain all the case law on enforcement of intra-EU awards or injunction proceedings before national courts, as we understand these to fall outside the scope of the research. Similarly, the desk research does not include analysis of the Energy Charter Treaty, its modernisation, or its applicability to intra-EU ISDS.

The data collected was organized into a spreadsheet for easy analysis and reference. However, the spreadsheet could be made more accessible by someone with better expertise in Excel. Please note that when a cell contains a lot of text, as happens in this spreadsheet this text is no longer visible unless clicked on twice.

Finding:

The desk research revealed several key findings related to Investment Protection within the EU. Firstly, most academic literature concerning intra-EU investment protection, written in the wake of the Achmea decision concentrates specifically on the constitutional aspects of that case (and subsequent Komstroy, PL Holdings or Micula decisions). In other words, most academic contributions analyse either jurisdiction and admissibility of (ongoing) intra-EU arbitration cases or the enforcement of such awards, rather than substantive rules of EU law applicable to cross-border investments. In addition, another large portion of academic output explores the constitutional fundamentals lying behind EU investment policy (post 2009). Secondly, the case law relied on by the Commission or indeed the few but insightful academic contributions concerned with such EU rules, tends not to explicitly refer to cross-border investments but rather concerns fundamental freedoms most broadly. Thirdly, data collected indicated that while many do mention the role of the ECHR, not many explicitly work through the case law.

Conclusion:

The findings from the desk research highlight gap in research and understanding of protection of cross-border investment in the EU. The spreadsheet contains the detailed data collected during the research process and can be used as a reference tool for future stages of the current project.
